and offered him the job of Assistant Secretary General of NATO. He promised to think it over and let me know tomorrow.

Was briefed for the PSB meeting, after which had Psychological Strategy Board luncheon in my office with Messrs. Smith, Foster, and Allen, and then attended PSB meeting.

I telephoned Jack McCloy in Bonn to ask him to talk with Jimmy Dunn about the Italian situation because Dunn could be helpful on that, and also to send me a telegram about how he sizes up the time element. McCloy expects to be in Paris next Sunday or Monday.

Attended a meeting in the Secretary's office on German contractuals, EDC, and the NATO meeting, after which Messrs. Jessup, Williamson, and Calhoun returned with me to my office and we continued the discussion.

I saw Mar[illegible] Fleischmann and talked to him about possibility of his taking a job, either the Assistant Secretaryship General of NATO or one of the Chief of Mission posts in the Far East. Asked him to keep himself free for about two weeks, which he promised to do.

Bert Jolis stopped in to see me.
